

LEASED VEHICLE

Wear & Tear Protection

Leasing a car should be a carefree and enjoyable alternative to the responsibilities of auto ownership. But there's no joy in paying for excess wear and tear when returning your leased vehicle to the dealership.

Lease agreements hold you financially responsible for the condition of your vehicle's interior and exterior when you turn it in. And every year, dealerships assess over a half-billion dollars in excess wear and tear to lease holders.

But with Excess Wear & Tear Protection, you can avoid this unwanted expense. From the exterior to the interior to missing or broken parts, we'll cover all the basics before you turn your car in—making sure your vehicle is returned to the dealership in great shape.

Minimize the headache and worry of excess wear and tear. Protect yourself with Leased Vehicle Protection.
